

GEOFFREY CORMIER

Geoffrey Cormier grew up on James Island, played percussion in a group called the Archetypes (which specialized in medieval music) and went to work for the Jim Henson Company in 1998 designing sets. Soon he was learning everything he could about puppetry. Cormier gravitated toward the dark art of shadow puppets. Years of research, travel and performance followed.